THE SKELETON IN THE DEEP PIT.

Scientific Facts—The Story of an Indian Maiden—To Whom Do the Bones Belong !- Implements Found in the Cave-Where the Original Is.

A matter of scientific wonder is the skeleton, or rather the fragments of one, lying in a deep pit in one of the chambers. The piace has been filly named "Skeleton Gorge." The sides are fery rogged, wild and gloomy; the bottom is contracted, giving a space for standing room of but a few square feet. On one side is a perpendicular rock to the height of twenty or thirty feet; on the other two sides—for the space is more nearly tri-angular in form than any other—the rocks bear away as they rise but their faces are so bold as to make the act of scaling them almost impossible even with the aid of light. On the discovery of the fact that there were human bones in the caverus, the standard stories and rememgrances were unearthed from vivid imaginations One was the usual disappearance some thirty years ago of the peripatectic peddler. Another, recent, wishes to be more romantic, and blishes in the Haltimore Sen of August 8, 1881, quotation marks, a story about an "Indian Maiden," and a touching reference to her wrongs and slights. It would be a pleasure to know to what history or work the quotation marks used by the writer refer, for we are seeking light. THERE ARE CERTAIN GIVEN FACTS efore us, and they are facts which to the scientific world are of greas importance:

First—There are the bones lying in the dirt and clay, and washing from the rocks above and

Second-The greater part of them are buried under the bardened surface, which remains as yet unbroken save in one or two places, and they show

Third—Enough of the bones are exposed to show conclusively that they at some time belonged to a human being. The femur and the head of the femur are unmistakable, so also a portion of a protruding Jaw-bone and two or three teeth.

THE STORY OF AN "INDIAN HALDEN," until a solid reference is given, is restantle nonsense, for the reason that an "Indian maiden," or any other maiden, would not be likely to get into ch a place. It is too far from the entrance and such a place. It is too far from the entrance and there is too much long-winded and slimy climbing. Whether they are male or female can, however, be told on examination. The victim may have been a wounded hunter trying to escape the fury of the monster bear, whose scratches on the rock still mark his struggles to get up the inclined side of the formations lying about midway from the skeleton and the only known entrance. He may have tracked the beast to his den and, like many another hunter, entered, and been the like many another hunter, entered, and been the victor. The bones may BELONG TO AN INDIAN WARRIOR who sought to bury disgrate in a grave that, in his estimation, could never be found. They may belong to a slave who sought shelter from the panting rage of bloodhounds and baffled them only to meet death in a more terrible form—to wit: Falling from a precipice in the darkness and dying by inches, with nothing but rocks and dripping alime for his companions. They may belong to one of a prehistoric race, such as have been un-earthed in the far interiors of caves in Southern France and the deepest recesses of abandoned quicksilver mines in Mexico, and the contemplation of which now fill the lover of archeological uits with such delight. They may belong to

WHOSE IMPLEMENTS WERE OF PLINT, or still further back to the race who used a coarser. stone and lived and reveled in the sunny fields of the Western Hemisphere before the glacial period. The discovery of the remains of a prehistoric man would greatly enhance the interest of the caves, and the future visitor would look with awe and admiration upon the last remnant of its aboriginal explorer. One theory is as good as another so long as we are obliged merely to look at the fragments imbedded in the crust. As yet THE SKULL CANNOT BE DETERMINED.

It is too deeply buried to saford any information.

It is a pity that a mystery should still be forced to remain wrapped around these relies. Not the alightest investigation has yet been had, except what is afforded by the dim examination allowed by candles and an inconvenient posture. A plan has suggested itself to me, and it seems worthy the has suggested itself to me, and it seems worthy the trying. The company who own the cavern will lose nothing by it; on the contrary, will be greatly benefited by any investigation that may or can be made. I would propose that the upper surface of the formation in which the remains of a lost life are now embedded be carefully dried by first swabbing with sponges and blotting-paper, then taking a plaster cast. After this has been successfully secomplished, cut with a narrow chisel around the edges of the formation edges of the formation

DOWN THE SIDES OF THE ROCKS and hift out the entire piece containing the bones. The upper cake can still be preserved entire and in its present condition, and easily returned to its sition if needed, while the part hidden can be examined by scientists, preferably the Smithsonian, for then it would become a matter of national care. Such a procedure would be the means possibly of adding vast wealth to archmological research. It is evident that in the forma tion underneath the PRESENT EXPOSED PORTION there is something either of stone, or flint, or horn, or beads, or metal, or clothing, that will tell who the victim was and to what age he belonged. The character of the formation is such that they would not wholly perish and be obliterated. There may be portions of skin clinging to some of the frag-ments of bone, and they will determine whether the man was black, or white, or red, when the bones themselves, would not afford the slightest aid. If these remains, now buried in a miscelan-eous mixture of dirt and carbonate of lime, do prove of scientific value, it would be eminently NATIONAL MUSEUM.

The plaster cast referred to will fulfill every requirement of sight-seeing. Right here, however, a very natural objection arises in the minds of the a very natural sofection arises in the minds of the proprietors. It was tersely stated by one of them the other day: "The moment we show a plaster cast tourists and visitors will say: 'The whole thing is 'put up' for a sensation.'" The answer to that is: "The Smithsonian has charge of the original in the interest of science, and the whole of the relies can be examined, while the surface is all that could be seen in the case and that is acall that could be seen in the case, and that is ac-curately reproduced." CARLMETH.

Colonel Stafer stated that before relieving Flipper from the commissary department he thought him perfectly honest and of good habits, and if the money had been stated then stoien it had been taken by some one cless. He further stated that previous to the investigation Flipper's administration flad given entire satisfaction. On the 10th of August, Flipper had been seen in town with horse and saddle-bags. Flipper was ordered back immediately, and directed to turn over his funds on hand within two or three minutes after entering his quarters. Some $2,000 were found on his dask ready for delivery. He could not say whether it was in the saddle-bags when he was seen in town or was in the saddle-bags when he was seen in town or not. He had a ways examined his accounts weekly Lefray Sentenced to be Hanged. MAIDSTONE, Nov. 8 .- The trial of Arthur Lefroy for the murder of Mr. Gold came to a close to-day. The court room was densely crowded. Lefroy was pale and dejected. Lord Chief Justice Coloridge's summing up for the presention, which lasted between three and four hours was strongly against the prisoner, and tended to three discredit on the point on which the defense relied that Lefroy had not pawned the visited and howed entire dischief to the resident to the point on which the defense relied that Lefroy had not pawned the visited and howed entire dischief to the resident. pistol, and showed entire disbeller in the prison-er's assertion that a third person was present in the railway-car at the time of the murder. The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. After sentence had been passed Lefroy protested his innocence.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A Returned Consul and His Tribute of Patthful Service-Other Notes. Captain Alf.ed E. Lee, for the past four-and-a-balf years Consul-General at Prankfort-on-thehalf years Consul-General at Frankfort-on-the-main, was in Washington yesterday, starting for his home at Columbus last hight. He arrived at New York from Germany week before last, and has visited Washington at this time in order to secure through the proper authorities the delivery of a valuable silver service from the custom-house, which was presented to him on his retirement from office by fifty heads of leading firms at Frankfort. The service is beautiful, a tea set of twelve pieces, fashloned in the renaissance style, and coefficient for the personnel of the management being so near dentical the Reliaf Association was being injured. The custom-house charges upon it are $199. The State Department is hopeful of securing a remittal of this duty, which would be an onerous tax upon a man as a penalty for having served his trust so satisfactorily as to win this unusual tribute of an effective served and the securing satisfactorily as to win this unusual tribute of an effective served and the securing satisfactorily as to win this unusual tribute of an effective served and the securing satisfactorily as to win this unusual tribute of an effective served and the security of the management being so near identical the Reliaf Association was being injured. A special act of Congress may be necessary, as in the case of the Khedive's jewel, present to General Sherman's cidest daughter, Mrs. Fitch. Captain Lee returns in excellent teelth. ter, Mrs. Fitch. Capitain Lee returns in executent health, and has accepted the post of manuging editor of the Ohio Sinte Journal. He was formerly its assistant editor, and is welcomed back by the press and people of Ohio, to whom his exceptionally gallant army service originally endeared him. Miss Lily Scidnore is again in Washington, after a prolonged tone in New England and the West. a prolonged tour in New England and the West,

She will be joined by Mrs. Scidmore, her mother, later in the month. Hon. Frank Hatton, First Assistant Postmaster-General, returned Sunday evening from a flying trip to his home at Burlington, Iowa, bringing Mrs. Hatton and their little son, Richard, an only child. The family of Mrs. Hatton, whose malden name was Snyder, were originally of Virginia, though she met and married Mr. Hatton in Iowa. Tyner, whose health is improving. Mr. Hatton has acted as Posimaster-General ever since his return, a responsibility almost unprecedented to de-volve upon a newcomer, but which he fills with-out friction, bringing to it the energy which has made his paper, the Hawkeys, an acknowledged OWST withe its editor is still a young man.

Dr. and Mrs. Dexter have now taken the entire building known as the John Quincy Adams house, Nov. 1533 and 1535 F street, which still belongs to the Adams estate, and have fitted up its elegant parlors very handsomely for Congressmen or others wishing desirable suites. The Adams famlly are greatly averse to selling landed property. It is one of their idiosyncrasics, of which the world gives them credit for many. This residence was built by ex-President Adams the second, and was his home at the time of his death.

WARDEN CROCKER'S REPORT. Doings at the District Jail During the Past Year.

The warden of the District jail, General J. S. Crocker, has submitted his annual report to the Attorney-General. He says the health and reneral sanitary condition of the jail have, as a rule, been good, with no contagious diseases or fevers of a malignant type. An increase of malarial disturbances is reported. Only one death occur-red during the year; cause, heart disease. Religious services are held regularly under the ausloes of the Young Men's Christian Associations and 3 ismales to the Eric County pentioniary, making in all 70 convicts transported at an ex-pense of $1,502.92. Fifty-four boys were delivered to the Reform School. The daily average number of prisoners confined in the jail was 2%. The total number imprisoned during the year was 1,947, of whom 1,698 were males and 254 females, and of which number 10 were pardoned by the President and 6 by the Commissioners of the District. Two males were executed and two sent to the Insane asylum; 1,820 males and 254 females were discharged. There are remaining in jail at the close of the year 161 males and 24 females. Of the pris-oners 11 were held for murder, 3 for rape, and 5 for bigamy. Of the number committed to jail 1,822 were tried, convicted, and sentenced.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Societies. A meeting of the board of managers of the Associated Charities Association was held last night at Education building, corner of Eighth and G streets. Commissioner Dent presided and Mr. L. S. Emery acted as accretary. Besides the officers there were present Messrs. A. S. Solomons, A. S. Pratt, J. F. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Gangwer, and Mrs. J. Spencer. Mr. Emery suggested that fifteen local societies be established throughout the Dis-trict, and that the head of each of these societies se considered a member of the board of nanagers. Mr. Emery also submitted a plan of mbdivisions and boundaries for each of the said districts. The suplect was referred to the committee appointed at a previous meeting. The two vacancies existing in the board caused by the election of one of the members to the office of secretary, and the declination of Mr. R. C. Fox to serve, were filled by the unanimous election of Mrs. General S. A. M. Caufield and Mrs. M. F. Walling. Messrs Solomons, Pratt, and Cook were appointed by the chair as a permanent board to audit all bills against the association. Mrs. Spencer, who represented the association at the conference of State Charities, held recently in Boston, made, a brief statement of the work ac-complished there. Permission was given her to prepare a full account of the proceedings of the conference, and submit it at the next meeting. After transacting a little routine business the

Who is Postmaster-General ? A reporter of the Critic, in conversation last night with a well-known and highly responsi-ble gentleman, learned a fact that is of too much importance to be lost. He said that a few days ago he was in the Post-Office Department and he found the Postmaster-General and all the heads of the several departments of the Post-Office were present making up the estimates for the Department for the next two years, and chief among them was Detective Gibson, who seemed to have more to say than Hazen or Lyman, or, in fact, more than Mr. James himself. In fact, Gibson seemed to be doing all the talking. He seemed to be running the Department. The same genitemen said that the Department. The same gentleman said that the course of James had been so mysterious that he could not account for it on any other hypothesis than that he was completely under Gibson's con-

Light Infantry Relief Association The Washington Light Infantry have for semetime had in contemplation the formation of a relief association, to be composed of members of the corps, and, an organization was perfected at a meeting last night, by the election of the following officers: Licutenant William N. Dalton, president; Licutenant M. Goddard, vice-president; Private W. C. While, secretary; Sergeant John G. Cowle, treasurer; board of directors—Lieutenant John S. Miller, Corporat C. G. Sloan, and Private Newmeyer. The plan of the association is similar to the Masonic Relief Societies, and with the well-known energy and business capacity of the officers above mentioned, its success may be confidently

MASONIC RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

Annual Meeting Last Night-Election of There was a meeting of the members of the Masonic Relief Association at Tallmadge Hall last evening, for the purpose of electing seven members of the board of directors, to serve for three years. Special interest was taken in the election, from the fact that there was a movement on foot to elect new men in place of those members who were also connected with the management of the Washington Endowment Association.

There was a feeling that the two associations were too closely connected, and that in consequence of

as the associations were entirely so. Mr. Alexan-der Gardner has been acting as the secretary of both associations, but in his annual report as secretary of the Relief Association he announced that he would n t again be a candidate for the that he would not again be a cannotate for the office. The meeting last evening was largely attended, and was called to order by the president, Mr. John E. Herrell. A resolution was offered by deneral Browne, providing that no one should serve as as a director of this association who was a director in a similar organization. This resolution gave rise to considerable discussion, during which the merits of the question were pretty freely discussed, pro and con. The resolution was finally laid on the table, and the election by ballot was begun.

THERE WERE TWO TICKETS. One contained the names of the old directors as follows; John Foos, Naval, No. 4; Thomas Dow-ling, Potomac, No. 5; Alexander Gardner, Leb-anon, No. 7; Martin R. Thorp, Hiram, No. 10; Robert Ball, Dawson, No. 16; John Gibson, Acacla, No. 18; Henry Conrades, Stansbury, No. 24; J. C. Hesse, Arminius, No. 25. > Rattrond Accident.
> The engine attached to the Richmond rain, due here at half-past nine o'clock, struck man named Felix Cupton near Waterloo about half a mile from Four-Mile Run, last even-ing, and knocked him several feet down an em-bankment. As soon as possible Engineer Desmond slackened speed and the train men dis-covered Cupton lying in a ditch, e.vered with mud and bleeding profusely from a cut behind the car. He was brought to this city and at-tended by Dr. Bradford, who found that his injury though painful was not of a dangarous na-tree. The police ambulance was summoned and ture. The police ambulance was summoned and conveyed to Providence Hospital where he was made comfortable. Cupton, who resides in Fair-fax County, was considerably intoxicated when the accident occurred and it is supposed that in the darkness he stumbled across the track and was struck by the pilot of the engine.

Ryland Chapel, South Washington, was gala scene last night. The Sunday school piecs of the Young Men's Christian Associations whiteand colored, and moral instruction has been imparted by evaugelists and other visitors. Attention is called to the necessity of an euclosing wall around the jail building, which want has frequently been the cause of great annoyance and serious apprehensions to those responsible for the reputation of the institution and the safe keeping of the inmates. He earnestly recommends the building of suitable walls at at early day. Repairs to the amount of $1,806,52 have been made during the year. The warden has transported during the year. The warden has transported during the year 23 male and 4 female convicts to the Albany penitentiary, 35 males to the Auburn State prison, and 7 females to the Auburn State prison, and 7 females to the Eric County penitentiary, and 3 females to the Eric County penitentiary, were especially happy in the execution of their were especially happy in the execution of their parts. > The regular monthly meeting of the National Arbitration League was held in the par-lers of Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, on F street, with Hon. Fred. P. Stanton, president, in the chair; S. P. Moses, recording secretary; J. Weed Corey, corresponding secretary, and J. M. Blanchard, treasurer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Colouel A. B. Meacham was selected as the essayist of the League upon the subject of " Arbitration as the Cure for the Indian Troubles," in the lecture-room of the E street Bap-tist Church on Friday evening next. On motion the following persons were enrolled as active members of the league: D. P. Holloway, Hon. J. F. Farnsworth, J. C. Tasker, Dr. Jayne, A. B. Meacham, and C. M. Lozier, M. D.; S. Ireneus Prince, Peter Cooper, and Rev. T. B. Taylor as honorary members.

> The Naval Advisory Board. The Naval Advisory Board which re-convened Monday to consider upon the report pre-pared by Lieutenant Edward W. Very, U. S. N., The secretary of the Board, under direction of Rear-Admiral John Rogers, the president of the Board, adjourned finally yesterday morning after having failed to agree upon a unanimous report. The report prepared by Lieutenant Very, as above mentioned, was voted for by the majority, but the minority is so strong that the report which the minority members will prepare will be submitted also to the Secretary of the Navy. Officers of the navy in general lament the fact that a unanimous report was not agreed upon, because the effect will be to quash all hopes of appropriations for the rebuilding of the navy. The majority report will be presented to Secretary Hunt.

> The Washington Light Guard.
> At a meeting of the Washington Light Guard, held last evening, five applications for membership were received. First Lieutenant J. F. Hodgson's resignation was accepted, and he was elected an honorary member. The Guard has organized a giec club composed of the following members: Charles M. Sanderson, Calvin Norris, Edwin Crandall, Lorenzo A. Bailey, Isace Scott, Fred. Grant, Lewis Herrick, John E. Buckingham, William Work, James Brereton, William O. Bir minghan, and A. J. Birmingham. This military organization, under the efficient direction of its new commander, Major H. D. Norton, has shown an activity highly commendable, and it will soon take rank with the other military organizations of the District.

The Old Central Guard-Hou The janitor of the Old Central Guard-House, which was under charge of the provest guard, during the war, says that while the visiting militia troops were in the city, on their way to and returning from the Yorktown celebration, the old place was crowded with people, who said they knew every inch of the place. One person, the chaplain of a visiting regiment, asked particularly to be shown to a certain cell, when he said that he remembered the place well, for once, while a soldier during the war, he was run in there drunk and wash d down with the bese.
